Napoleon's cavasse in Corsica against the recognized champion of Imperialism, did harm to the cause, however it benefited individuals. The Empress and her children are well known, heartily despised. Her defeat.

Ground for Henry Irving's suits against John Fun was that his representations were condemned as demoralizing, since they depicted the cut-throat and "assassinated" man. The matter was compromised, and ended, on payment of costs.

Of the fastidious people in Washington the modest fashion certain Congressmen, and the nation, their described "Mrs. Hon. Congressman, etc." will be a difficult fall for those proud when they are obliged to sign themselves "Hon. Congressman."

John Daisell, now a member of the Ohio legislature, is described by a Columbus correspondent as a tall, spare man, with a hatchet-shaped jaw, a keen nose, and a look that denotes a self-reliant, active mind. "He wore a suit of black, and a pair of golden curls hung from his forehead and dangled with the velvet collar of his overcoat."

to this country in November, 1900, Dr. Connell, who had just been consecrated Bishop of Philadelphia in London. Three months he went to Lancaster, and has been since Dr. Mary's without interruption for thirty-four years, winning the esteem and love of the entire community, irrespective of race or opinion.

Connell, a Frenchman of great reputation in his own country, has written a book on America, in which he describes some of our customs, the very existence of which is unknown in his country. For instance, he says that schoolmasters punish the girls who are late by having them submit to be spanned by the teacher, which in some traveled outside of Brooklyn during his America. The French Prime Minister, under Napoleon, has made his appeal for aid to the Assembly on curious grounds. The New York Herald thinks the telegraphic text of the address already printed shows "perhaps the most audacious campaign ever penned. That he, the man who was Prime Minister, that he went to war for a 'joyous heart,' should say that, were it a number of 'ifs' France would have victorious, is natural enough, but, when he says that he will lay all the shorn

POLITICAL NOTES.

...of Bozoe Conkling to the breeze, and the Commercial Advertiser advises the formation of Conkling Clubs throughout the State.

The Republican Comptroller of New York sees as much credit for the satisfaction of the condition of the State final the Democratic Governor. So says York Herald.

Senator Bayard has again taken occasion to denounce the hard-money speech recently delivered before the Philadelphia Democratic Campaign Club in favor of specie-payments "at once."

Charles Francis Adams is too good a man, too wise a man, and too rich a man, to be the President of the United States. These are the arguments some of his opponents are making against him. But, after all, the chief objection is that he can't be elected.

The reason why the New York Tribune argues that the Presidential election will turn upon the question of specie-payments is that the people of New York is not far to seek. For the Tribune is not so much concerned with the importance of the election as it is with the importance of the specie-payments question.

of New York are Gov. Thibault's questioning the Democratic nomination. Gov. Chamberlain, of South Carolina, is running judicial elections in that State. It is the hard-earned trimmings of long service again in danger; that we must continue to turn back the incoming tide of corruption and incompetency which will, if unchecked, sweep over the whole State.

The Cincinnati Commercial mournfully declares there is something in the nature of a social movement. The symptoms are everywhere to appear in several directions. It is not in favor of the jobs of the rag-baggers, and must submit his neck to the clasp of the butcher's knife.

Col. J. W. Forney must prepare to answer the matter of that mysterious $25,000 as to its returns home. Even his political friends are relieved and anxious. The Cincinnati Enquirer, for instance, suggests that the Government might write an appropriate notice of addition, deletion and Silence. The New York Tribune, the Springfield Republican and the St. Louis Globe took it. Mr. Blaine on his proposed amendment to Jeff Davis from the general amnesty would just the know on what ground they could justify the amendment. The review in the Andersonville record of Mr. Davis' doubt, a genuine surprise to the newspaper. The comments on Minister Washburne are all respectful, and indicate that he

The irrepressible conflict rages even in Africa. Read this: "Archbishop Goen, of Zaire, not long ago addressed the General Conference of the Roman Catholic bishops in the Congo, warning the overthrow of the present 'public education.' It has roused a great protest among his ears which no power of the Church can keep off. Both political parties taken strong grounds against economic education, and any man who would offend the Roman Catholic hierarchy is compelled to take sides for it and pledge himself not only to the revolution demanded by the
